Trusts in brief

We offer a range of services providing tailor-made solutions for every client. We guide you through the process of setting up and managing your assets, catering for all circumstances or trust types.

Key considerations

The assets you would like to include in your trust – these can include immovable property, valuables, art, bank accounts, investments including stocks and mutual funds, life insurance, business interests, intellectual property rights and interests in corporate bodies.

Trustees – the trustee has legal authority over the trust assets. We offer professional trustee services to give you peace of mind that the trust will always be managed in a professional, responsible and impartial manner.

Beneficiaries - the people or entities that are entitled to benefit out of the assets of the trust. The benefits can be split evenly or each beneficiary (or potential beneficiary) may receive a particular percentage or asset, according to your preferences when setting up the trust.

Terms – you can choose the terms of your trust, down to the management of your assets and who they can go to. The trust deed prescribes the rules that govern a trust, permitted uses for the assets, and the powers of your trustee. You can decide to pay benefits in a lump sum or via an income stream (for example). As part of setting up your trust, we will advise you on the options available and ensure that your trust deed reflects your preferences for the future running of the trust

Professional trustees

A professional trustee can offer stability, continuity, experience, and impartiality. We will ensure that your wishes are completely upheld throughout the lifetime of your trust, as well as handling any sensitive issues that may arise as a result of disputes or changes in your personal circumstances.

A professional trustee is independent of your beneficiaries and is less susceptible to pressures to release assets or make decisions based on emotional reactions rather than following the terms of the trust.

Trust types

We offer a range of trust types, interest in possession trusts, including fixed income trusts, discretionary trusts, charitable trusts, maintenance trusts, disability trusts and school fee trusts, to ensure that your assets are used to improve the future for your family and your chosen beneficiaries.

Trusts provide solutions for a range of financial planning challenges. They offer great flexibility as part of estate and succession planning of assets.

Preservation of wealth

Trusts may be used to own specific assets, such as land or an interest in a family company, which would not be appropriate or practical for a settlor to divide between individuals.

The use of a trust enables such individuals to enjoy the benefits from the assets despite the fact that they do not legally own them. A trust will also help to maintain the capital value of such assets for future generations.

A trust may also qualify to be treated as fiscally neutral - a very important motivation for establishing trusts in Malta.

Asset protection

An individual whose patrimony is exposed to business risk can protect his family assets. The trustee becomes the legal title holder of the trust assets, limiting the exposure to the settlor's beneficial share, if any.

In addition a person who does not want his assets to be dissipated can use a trust to consolidate them for continuity of administration and preservation of growth. The settlor can also use a trust to preserve assets for future generations, even for beneficiaries who do not yet exist but are identifiable when the trust is formed, such as future descendants.

Inheritance and family unity

If you want to preserve and enhance relationships within the family or to prevent disputes over the inheritance of your assets, you can use a trust to promote family togetherness or shield assets from becoming the object of disputes.
